Hearing evaluation:

A hearing “test” actually includes several tests that measure how well you hear a variety of sounds, such as tones and speech. A baseline hearing screening is recommended at age 50, unless you're experiencing symptoms of hearing loss sooner.

People may have hearing loss in an area only certain speech sounds are present; thus they can hear some of the speech sounds but not all of them, so speech is unclear. For example, the consonants listed here are located in the higher pitch region where many people have hearing loss (as seen in the speech banana below).

Your Clear Ear hearing will guide you through the steps of a thorough hearing evaluation, including:

- A visual examination of your ear using an otoscope
- Air and bone conduction testing
- Word discrimination after your evaluation, we'll show you your results on an audiogram. Audiograms provide a visual representation of the sounds you're hearing and the sounds you're missing. Clear Ear will explain the different hearing aid styles and technology
- Clear Ear Hearing Aid work with all the major hearing aid factory's such as Unitron Hearing, Gn Resound, Phonek, Widex, to name a few.

HEARING LOSS INFORMATION

Signs of hearing loss

The signs of hearing loss can be subtle and emerge slowly, or early signs of hearing loss can be significant and come about suddenly. Either way, there are common indications and hearing impaired signs. You should suspect hearing loss if you experience any of the signs below.

- People around you seem to mumble
- You often ask others to repeat themselves

- Difficulty following conversations when in background noise or when in groups
- Children and women's voices are difficult to hear
- Need to turn up TV or radio louder
- Cannot hear high pitched sounds such as birds, crickets and bells
- Did you ever work in a noise environment or being exposed to a loud sound(s) for a long period of time?

Emotionally:

Feel stressed out from straining to hear what others are saying.

- Feel annoyed at other people because you can't hear or understand them.
- Feel embarrassed to meet new people or from misunderstanding what others are saying.
- Feel nervous about trying to hear and understand.
- withdraw from social situations that you once enjoyed because of difficulty hearing

Medically:

- Have a family history of hearing loss.
- Take medications that can harm the hearing system (ototoxic drugs).
- Have diabetes, heart, and circulation or thyroid problems.
- Have been exposed to very loud sounds over a long period or single exposure to explosive noise.
